CITY, COUNTY FUND SET UP AT 12-MILLION

Legislation allocating Sales Tax Is Sent to Governor

DEMOCRATIC BLOC LOSES LONG FIGHT

Bill to Divert Auto Tag Funds Is Still Before Senate

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 19.—The cities and counties must get along with a $12,000,000 a year slice of the sales tax revenue.
The Ohio senate settled that definitely late yesterday when it completed enactment of the sales tax allocation and sent it to Gov. John W. Bricker for his signature.
The Democratic senators fought for three hours for an increase, but the 19-member Republican majority remained solid in opposition. The measure was finally passed, 19 to 17, with all the Democrats dissenting.

Dispute of Controversy
Its passage disposed of the most controversial piece of legislation considered so far by the 94th general assembly, and the Republican's unanimity augured well for the remainder of the administration's program.

Still before the senate is a bill diverting $5,000,000 in auto license tag revenue from highways to the needs of local governments, but, unless city and county officials show more interest, it may be ditched, an informed source said.
The Democratic members opposed the tag proposition in an effort to force an increase in the sales tax allocation.

J. Fred Bittinger, Democratic state chairman, issued a statement today asserting that "selfishness and political ambition won out in the fight over the sales tax."

Fail Three Times
Three times the Democrats failed in efforts to increase the sales tax allocation to the local governments.
Arguing for an increase, the Democrats declared that the legislature should make good an implied promise, made in 1934, to give the local governments 40 per cent of the sales tax after deductions for poor relief and administration.

The Republicans replied that an increased allocation to the cities and counties might throw Governor Bricker's budget out of balance and jeopardize appropriations set aside for the building program, for schools and for old age pensions.

LISBON, March 19.—The board of education of the Beaver Rural school district was named defendant in a petition filed in common pleas court here Tuesday by W. L. The plaintiff states he is the owner of 69.25 acres in Section 16, Middleton township and alleges that 69 years ago the board of education without record or title erected a school building on a portion of the farm. Gorbey asks the court to declare the building as a part of the real estate belonging to him.

U. S. SPENDING FOR ARMS MAY TOP BRITAIN'S

Government Is Pouring Nearly 4-Billion Dollars Into Plants

WILL TURN OUT WAR WEAPONS BY JUNE

British Aid Appropriation. In Meantime, Nears Final Vote

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 19.—The United States armament spending may soon equal or exceed Great Britain's present monthly war outlay of $1,500,000,000 of congress votes the pending $7,000,000,000 lease lend appropriations.

To get this tremendous production program into high gear as quickly as possible, congressional tabulations showed, the government is pouring nearly $4,000,000,000 into airplane plants, shipyards, tank factories and other industrial facilities.

War Implements By June
Interested legislators said they were informed that by June the vast armaments production machine—already enlarged by the expenditure of more than $2,000,000,000 since the defense program started—would be turning out implements of war for the army and navy at a rate requiring a monthly treasury outlay of $1,200,000,000.

While this was regarded as the temporary peak for strictly American needs, approval of British aid appropriation would call for the expenditure of an additional $7,000,000,000 during the next 18 months to produce the equipment for other nations.

This aid program would boost the nation's monthly bill for arms to $1,600,000,000 about $100,000,000 more than Great Britain is spending to produce the equipment for other nations.

In a desperate effort to expand armaments production rapidly for such gains demands, the government has outlined expenditures of approximately $1,863,000,000 for new federal and private plants in the next year and a half.

Arsenal Workers' Train Is Wrecked; 200 or More Hurt

Rammed by a fast freight train at Windham, near Ravenna, a commuter train carrying more than 700 persons bound to the nearby government arsenal, was derailed, causing injury to more than 200 workers. An investigation was launched, although preliminary inspection revealed the wreck was due to "man failure." The $40,000,000 arsenal, in the progress of construction, is being built in line with the government defense program. Picture shows one of the crushed coaches lying upside down next to the freight train that rammed it. Most seriously injured victims were in this car.

U.S.-BUILT PLANES LANDED IN GREECE FOR BALKAN FIGHT

Nazi Bombs Batter at Hull; British Advancing On African Front

(By Associated Press)
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 19.—Diplomatic messages said today that American-built warplanes for use in the expected German-British battle of the Balkans started arriving today at Greek mainland airports.

One message said the planes, flown from Cairo by the RAF, were the first American-built machines to be based in Greece. There were no details on the number of them or their types.

Germany's Luftwaffe thundered fire-bombs and high explosives on the English shipping city of Hull (pop. 300,000) in a violent overnight assault, leaving great numbers of dead and wounded.

On the African war front, the British announced the capture of Jijiga, an important eastern Ethiopian town, which controls the road to the provincial capital of Harar, 50 miles away. A swift 3-day drive across 150 miles of the arid Ogaden plateau preceded the assault.

Two other British columns, plunging deeper into Emperor Haile Selassie's Italian-conquered African kingdom from the south, were reported advancing upon Negelli, whence a passable road leads to the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa. Cairo dispatches said the British campaign in East Africa was now entering its final phase, after weeks of preparation, with a drive on all fronts aimed at crushing the Italians before the rainy season starts in about two weeks.

MEYERS LOW BIDDER ON ROUTES 30-45 JOB

The contract for grading and paving 3.529 miles of the Route 30 and 45 section between Lisbon and Gilmore's crossing, south of Lisbon, was expected to be awarded to Carl Meyers of Campbellburg, Ind., following the opening of bids by the state highway department yesterday.

Meyers' low bid of $368,196 was accepted by State Highway Director Hal G. Sours, along with bids on a number of other Ohio road improvements, but contract awards were withheld due to the legislature's failure to appropriate funds for the highway department. Eleven projects in 11 counties are affected.

Improvement of the stretch immediately south of Lisbon had been estimated at $424,400.

The project is in line with the national defense program to improve principal highways.

CITY AUDITOR MUST PUT O.K. ON PURCHASES

"Reckless Spending" Puts Funds In Jeopardy, Solons Assert

POLICE REQUEST FOR CAR STUDIED

Combination Police Auto And Ambulance Is Suggested

Designed as a means of keeping a closer watch on the city's finances, an ordinance which requires the signature of department heads as well as the city auditor on all purchase orders over $5, was passed by city council Tuesday night.

The law was proposed at council's last meeting by Councilmen Harry Vincent and A. P. Morris after it was charged that reckless spending at times jeopardized the city's general fund.

Auditor Must O. K. Bills
The measure, passed last night as an emergency on Vincent's recommendation, establishes a new method of making purchases for the city in that the city auditor serves somewhat as a purchasing agent, countersigning all purchase orders which bear the signature of a department head.

All orders for goods, materials and any other purchase for the city of $5 or more are affected. Departments heads involved include the mayor, service director, safety director, auditor, solicitor, engineer and president of council.

Vincent suggested that a check-up be made right away to determine the number of outstanding bills in order that the city auditor may know where he stands.

Council also gave final reading to an ordinance transferring $1,337.50 from the waterworks fund to the waterworks supply fund to cover the cost of drawing and sinking the new well in the Whinnery field. Tests have proven that the new 12-inch well can produce 400,000 or more gallons of water daily.

Resume Cruiser Study
Council's finance committee today resumed its study of Safety Director J. T. Rafferty's request that the city purchase a new police cruiser, following the solons' action last night in failing to sanction a motion by Councilman Charles Rheutan that the safety director seek bids on a new car.

Rheutan's motion was seconded by Frederick Miller, who later withdrew his second after other members of council pointed out that a proper committee study of the cruiser proposal had not been made.

Most of the councilmen said that if the present machine was not safe to operate, a new one was needed. However, they pointed out that it was not known whether funds were on hand to take care of the purchase, that the safety director can get bids without council authorization and that an investigation should be made of a police utility, or dual car, which, it was pointed out, could serve as an ambulance when needed.

Councilmen Harry Vincent, A. P. Morris, Fred Koerich and C. F. Zimmerman were in favor of checking up on the dual police car.

Rheutan, head of the safety committee, spoke for Safety Director Rafferty two weeks ago in asking for a cruiser to replace the present one which has been driven 62,000 miles. Zimmerman said he felt that the director should have made the request personally.

HERBERT H. SHARP

When death removes from a community a man as public-spirited as Herbert H. Sharp, it feels the loss keenly. Comparatively few men are left in Salem today with backgrounds of loyalty and devotion to their home town comparable to those qualities which characterized the long life of this retired industrialist. The Sharp family history dates back to the earliest days of this city. They were among the founders of its industrial life and contributed largely to its stability and the firm foundation of its later growth. Always were they interested in its welfare and in the development of those institutions which are today the backbone of its community life.

Herbert Sharp carried on these family traditions. He never lost an opportunity to be of public service and his active interest in civic affairs continued despite his advancing years. His two main interests were the public library and the scholarship fund of the High school alumni, both of which he served faithfully for many years. His contributions of time and active leadership extended to all other worthy community undertakings. He loved Salem as much as any man could love his home town and he gave expression to that devotion in many ways. The entire community pauses to pay tribute to his memory and to express its profound sorrow that such a useful life is ended.

60 PERCENT MORE

William S. Knudsen, who is famous for getting out work in the largest quantities with the least fuss, says there must be a 60 percent increase in American industrial activity to do the production job the government has outlined in its defense and lease-lend policies.

Perhaps the 60 percent figure is a shot in the dark, like those five-year programs they used to announce every few years in Russia, but it represents the nature of a national necessity—more production. There can be no security anywhere on earth against the threat of aggression unless it is backed by a rate of production equal to or greater than the rate in the aggressor countries. That is a simple statement of fact, subject to no argument.

Yet, it is impossible to forget that only a few months ago, in the heat of a presidential campaign when Wendell L. Willkie was croaking in a strained voice that America must have production and more production, the strategy of the spokesmen for the party in power was to say he was talking through his hat. They were still committed to the proposition that the United States could save itself without working; that there had been too much production already; that men who knew how to get things done were allied in some secret way with the forces of evil; i. e., the forces that didn't think there was anything particularly worshipping about the numerous cults of voodoo worship, hexing and star gazing clustered under the spreading wings of the New Deal.

Today, the President Roosevelt and Mr. Knudsen are in agreement that there must be more production. Those who have received political favors and political kicks in the pants must scramble into double harness and work together as though they hadn't been encouraged to kick each other in the shins during the last few years. It isn't inspiration, but perspiration, that is going to save America. That's the newest New Deal.

When the President was through with his historic speech on the sacrifices needed to save democracy last Saturday night, he paused on his way out of the auditorium to shake Wendell Willkie's hand. Perhaps that tells the story of the transformation of America from hot air to hard work better than it could have been told in 10,000 words on a national hookup.

NOTHING EVER HAPPENS

There's a good deal of the sound of "Nothing ever happens," chronic complaint of persons being bored to death, in some of the world's more momentous news announcements.

When German admirals in full dress are seen in uniform, it is announced they are on the scene in connection with a social function. Perish the thought they are interested in organizing a Black sea fleet to churn up anguish for more unwilling converts to the New Order.

It is noticed, also, that Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka is visiting Berlin and, later, Moscow, as more of a tourist than anything else. He has nothing on his mind, except to acquaint the westerners with the ways of Kodo—Japanese for what Americans call Hoyle.

This offhand treatment of probably the most momentous visit of our times is counter-balanced by an almost apathetic observation, delivered with a stifled yawn, that two U. S. cruisers and four destroyers have just dropped anchor at Auckland, New Zealand, as part of a training cruise. It has seemed to Americans sometimes that only foreigners understood training cruises, spring and fall military maneuvers, and tourists who happen to arrive on the scene heavily armed when there's blood to be let. It's good to know that the United States is catching on. If only a British bomber can manage to hit something in Berlin besides a hospital during Mr. Matsuoka's visit, he may begin to understand there are two sides to the unpleasantness being cooked up for the nasty nations that have been persecuting his people, the German people and the Italian people so cruelly.

HUMAN PERVERSITY

The deep, dark mystery of Grand Coulee dam out in the state of Washington isn't brightened up any by the latest news from the hydro-electric front in that state. Residents of Spokane, only city of any size in the Grand Coulee area, have just rejected a proposal for public power distribution of the electricity to be generated at the dam.

The proposal was to give the Spokane city commission authority to buy and distribute retail power from the dam either through acquisition of the existing private power system, or a new and competing system. The first would have cost $4,200,000, the second $6,500,000. Spokane voters decided to let well enough alone.

This fits awkwardly into the picture of a power project that will begin to turn out energy this month at a modest rate and will be producing one twelfth of all the electrical energy in the United States when it is completed. Barring unforeseen developments, Grand Coulee is in danger of being likened to an ice plant at the north pole—ice to give away and no customers. The government may convert Spokane eventually, but the Spokaneers are proving disagreeably perverse about the whole thing.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, March 20

ALTHOUGH a very active state of affairs is noted in this day's astral operations, yet there are many loopholes for defeat and frustration unless unusual caution and sagacity are employed. There may be sudden upsets, the cropping up of unexpected outlays or extravagances, with the definite want of cooperation or approval from elders, superiors or any sort of higher-ups.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly lively and progressive year in spite of the development of some surprising factors which may upset plans and demand unforeseen expenditure or financial hazards. Also there is little hope of the support of superiors, employers or others whose endorsement is vital.

A child born on this day should be versatile, talented and enterprising but may have some minor defects of integrity and normality that may withhold from it the support of its superiors. Early discipline and direction might uphold this.

DIABETES FUNDAMENTALS UNCHANGED

But Modern Science Makes Changes In Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Yesterday we stated that certain superficial changes had occurred in our present day treatment of diabetes but that the fundamental principles of treatment have not been changed. These fundamentals consist in the regulation of the diet and the use of some form of insulin.

It is necessary to understand the nature of diabetes before any Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

discussion of these methods of treatment can be given. Briefly, to recapitulate what we said yesterday, diabetes is due to the inability of the body to utilize starch or carbohydrate in the food normally, and this inability is due to the absence of insulin. The secretion which comes from certain cells in the pancreas, and which sparks the cells of the body, allows them to burn carbohydrate food.

The planning of the diet has always included a reduction in the amount of starch taken in, in order that this starch will not accumulate in the blood. Before the introduction of insulin, diabetic patients were allowed very little starch in their food, and their mode of life really made them quite uncomfortable. Nowadays they can enjoy all the good things of the table that anybody else enjoys from fruits to desserts. The tendency fifteen or twenty years ago was to give very small amounts of carbohydrate and make up the balance of the diet with fat. This has given way to what is now called the "high carbohydrate" or "high starch" diet.

Different Abilities
Every diabetic patient has a different ability to burn carbohydrates and, therefore, every patient must be individualized and the diet arranged to suit his particular needs. In general, according to Dr. Joslin, one of the prominent students of the disease, starch to the amount of 150 grams per day, with about 100 grams of fat, will lead to longer life of diabetic patients. Other people give more starch than that and lower the fat intake proportionately. But any of these figures show that with modern treatment a considerable increase in starch in the diet is advocated by every one nowadays. These diets are several times higher in starch content than the diets of ten or even fifteen years ago.

The diabetic patient must, of course, learn the carbohydrate content of foods, which he will find in food tables and such books as Joslin's DIABETIC MANUAL and many others written for patients. He will also have to learn, at first, to weigh his food and estimate the amount of starch he is getting in one day. This preliminary course of instruction is best done in the hospital and many patients find that this preliminary course of education in a properly conducted hospital is well worth the trouble and expense which it entails.

There is no reason, however, why a modern diabetic patient on a properly arranged diet cannot have fruit and a small portion of cereal in the morning for breakfast, some bread, many kinds of vegetables and even a small portion of dessert.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10c and 25c.

A PRELUDE

CHAPTER TWENTY

The intruder was seated in a high winged chair facing the door, his elbow resting on the arm. Kioffer looked into the man's face and felt his mouth go dry. It was a face he knew... dimly. It was brutal with small porcine eyes twinkling malevolently from deep folds of fat. The mouth was loose with great blubber lips and the jaw beneath it, protruding. The top of his inverted pear-shaped head was no thicker across than his neck. It was a dreadful, abysmal head... almost inhumanly hideous, terribly near the brute.

Yet the man was smiling — the thick lips rolled back, showing big fang-like teeth.

Kioffer made a supreme effort to keep the recognition from showing upon his own features and remained motionless. "Who are you and what do you want?"

For answer the man broke into a laugh but it was unnerving since he made no sound. His big body shook with merriment but his silence was sinister.

"I repeat," said Kioffer, "what do you want?"

"Why not speak German?" asked the ogre in that language, his voice a rumbling growl which seemed to come from abdominal depths.

Kioffer shrugged. "If you wish," he said. "Why not?" I am a German."

"A German?"

Siegrfried frowned. "Certainly," he said loudly. "I am a citizen of the Greater Reich."

"But sometimes a citizen of Osterreich," nodded the other. "Poor Austria!" he ended, his cruel lips twisting into a smile which never reached his pale eyes.

Kioffer said nothing. The other waved him to a chair with the barrel of the automatic and Kioffer sat down. "So," said the intruder, "we will talk."

Once more the brutal face twisted in that grimace which was supposed to be a smile. "So it is Kioffer now? Siegrfried Kioffer, I am told. Now that, my friend, interests me."

The tall dark man gave up his attempt at non-recognition and said evenly, "What is it you want, Stutz?"

"So," commented the other, "So you recall my name... at long... last... And it is this very matter of names which interests me— Hermann." He paused and smiled again. "You see, I have not forgotten. I have an excellent memory for faces — and names."

"What do you want?" repeated the supposed Siegrfried.

Stutz made no immediate reply. He allowed his eyes to wander round the room, nodding approvingly as he eyed the furniture and fittings.

"They tell me you have a car, no, my dear—Hermann," observed Stutz suddenly. "Now I... I have no car. Also I have very little money since my somewhat hurried departure from the Fatherland."

Kioffer exploded. Blackmail, hey? You always were a sneaking cur, Stutz. Even when you wore the storm trooper brown shirt, you were the slugging type—the store wrecker. But your own kind found you out, how you were stealing and extorting on the side. It's a pity you ran away before you faced a firing squad, but that would be too clean a death for you!"

Stutz shrugged. "Rave on if it helps you, I'll listen."

"How much do you want?" asked Kioffer abruptly. "Speak up!"

"My dear Hermann, don't let us stoop to sordid details so soon after our reunion. You see, my friend, the English police or intelligence might be interested to know, er—this business of false names, for instance—and passports."

Kioffer rose from his chair, stood looking down at the other. The automatic Stutz's hand moved to cover him the whole time.

"Listen," he said, "I have something to say. You, Erich Stutz, are a German. You are now an exile for ugly reasons. But though you have run afoul of the present administration back home, you are still a German, Stutz. Does that fact weigh with you, if you learn that I am here, in England, to serve Germany? Are you so lost to all sense of decency that you cannot remember your German blood and your duty to the Fatherland?"

"Interfere with me, Stutz, and you interfere with a plan upon which the future of our Fatherland and all Europe may well rest. Willingly I will give you money if you are in need, but do nothing which may jeopardize the work I am doing here."

When finished speaking, Siegrfried Kioffer stood looking into the icy eyes of Stutz who smiled again and said, "Bravo, Hermann! Bravo! That was an excellent performance! Now, shall we discuss what my allowance is to me?"

"You...," said Kioffer, but broke off quickly, knowing that Stutz must be appeased....

The girl put down her coffee cup on the low table and looked up at where General von Wallenfels sat staring into the fireplace, the ash on his neglected cigar growing longer and longer.

"A penny for your thoughts, Uncle Max," she said suddenly in English. Max von Wallenfels looked up. A penny," he echoed in the same language.

It was their habit to speak English to one another, it being wiser in Nazi Germany to use another language than German where every wall may be an ear and every corner may conceal a spy.

The general shook his crooked, grey head. "You would have to pay me a great deal more than a penny, Adelheid."

The Graf von Reinhold made no reply. To any man less absorbed in thought, she would have been appreciated as a very charming companion. She was a natural ash-blond of that almost Scandinavian type you find in the Baltic provinces of Germany. Her beauty, save for her colouring, seemed, however, more French than German in that she was essentially fine and had no trace of that stolidity which so often stamps the pretty woman in Germany. Her eyes were blue, so dark a blue as to seem almost violet, allowed— He passed a hand across his face. "It is strange, my dear, how of late I have been recalling certain words which were spoken to me by an old woman long before your birth."

"What old woman?"

"My nurse," replied Prince Max. "What, old Anna?" cried the girl. "Do you remember her?" asked the man in astonishment.

Adelheid nodded. "I remember her very well," she said. "She was incredibly old and looked like a witch. She was supposed to have second sight, wasn't she?"

"Yes," replied the general heavily. "And she told me that certain actions of mine would bring about the downfall of my house and that Wallenfels would become nothing but a name in a history book."

There fell a silence between them broken by the entry of a servant who came to fetch the coffee tray. When he had gone, Adelheid leaned back in her chair and asked quietly, "Is there any further news from London?"

Her uncle did not reply immediately. When he did, he merely said, "Siegrfried Kioffer," repeated the little countess. "He is a strange man, Uncle. I don't know what to make of him."

The general glanced curiously at her and asked civilly, "Is there any reason why you should make anything of him?"

Adelheid flushed slightly, but this was not noticeable in the dancing firelight.

"I find him... interesting," she ended lamely. "What is his history?"

"His history is only beginning," replied her uncle. "As for what has gone before..." He shrugged. "He is from Villach in the Austrian province of Carinthia. He was a merchant and had dealt much with the people of whom I am forming my brigade."

They smiled at one another; then Adelheid frowned and picked at her dress. "Is he," she asked hesitantly, "a gentleman of family?"

Prince Max did not answer and the girl, raising her head to look at him, saw that his shrewd eyes were turned upon her in a speculative stare. A slow tide of colour swept up from her neck dying her pale cheeks to a deeper shade. The general nodded.

"So it is like that! Adelheid, Adelheid," he went on, shaking his head, "this man is not for you. He is but a tool to my hand and it may well be that he will not live. Are you in love with the fellow?" he ended abruptly.

"I don't know," she answered slowly. "He...he disturbs me." She hesitated a moment; then said, her voice very low, "He is in love with me."

"Der Teufel!" swore Max of Wallenfels. "The impudence of the fellow!"

Adelheid shook her blonde head slowly. "No, no, Uncle, those days are past. You are no longer an aide-de-camp to a Hohenzollern who is emperor of all Germany. You are a servant of a one-time Austrian laborer!" She sighed.

"When does Herr Kioffer arrive?" "Tomorrow," said the General. (To be continued)

Their Chance For Recreation

Not all crippled children have the opportunity for recreation these three youngsters are enjoying. That is one reason the Rotary club is offering the public an opportunity to buy Easter seals. Recreation is only one of the important phases of the club's program for the benefit of crippled children in Salem and vicinity.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

By J. E. Pollard, Journalism Professor, Ohio State University

News in Legal Advertising Buried in what may seem to be an obscure corner of the newspaper is a small advertisement. It may be only a few lines. It is a public notice, sometimes known as legal or official advertising. These notices are common to practically all newspapers of general circulation.

Each a notice may be from an individual to say that on and after a given date he will not be responsible for any debts other than those contracted by himself. It may be a warning to all persons holding claims against an estate to present them for settlement. It may be a notice of election, or of the appointment of a guardian, or of a public improvement, or of the impending purchase of supplies or equipment for a public agency or service. There are hundreds of varieties.

In every case these notices are required or permitted by law. As such they are important. The law often fixes the form in which they shall appear, the size of the type to be used and the rate to be charged. This also accounts for the location and appearance of these notices.

To paraphrase an old saying, "there's news in them thar notices"—news of friends, neighbors and acquaintances, news of public affairs, and news that may affect you as an individual or the community as a whole. Newspapers occasionally print news stories calling attention

CITY AUDITOR TO O.K. FUTURE BILLS

New Program Is Approved As Means of Guarding City Funds

Councilman Arch Wentz, a member of the safety committee, said he was not opposed to buying a new cruiser but said a checkup of funds should be first made.
The request probably will be aired again at council's next session.
Would Sell Compressor
Service Director Charles Kennedy suggested to council that a $7,000 air compressor, not now used by the city and in storage at the pumping station, be sold. The water committee will investigate.
Kennedy informed Wentz, water committee chairman, that installation of water mains on Buckeye ave., W. Fourth st., and W. Sixth st., west of Jennings ave., for fire protection, probably would cost about $1,500. No action was taken.
Vincent, lighting committee chairman, invited other members of council to witness the demonstration of an electric "trouble-shooter" when the device is tried out in the near future by City Electrician Walter Worman.

Ohio U. Upsets Duquesne, 55-40, In National Cage Tourney

WHISTLES, SIRENS SHRIEK AS ATHENS STUDENTS PARADE

Capacity Crowd at Garden Sees Ohioans Rally In Last Half to Win

NEW YORK, March 19 — An Ohio basketball team won a game here last night but most of the cheering was done in its home city about 600 miles away.

Ohio university's alert five defeated Duquesne's veteran court combination, 55-40, in the opening game of the National Invitation Basketball tournament at Madison Square Garden, and when the news reached Athens, O., bedlam reigned.

Fire whistles and sirens made the night as noisy as midnight on Dec. 31, while students rounded up the college band and paraded the streets.

Capacity Crowd Watches

A capacity crowd of 15,700 here saw the Ohioans win in a game which was undecided until the latter part of the last half.

The score was tied seven times in the first half which left Duquesne a two-point leader.

Duke started the second half from the 26-24 score as if they were going to control the game. For the first two minutes the boys from Athens never had their hands on the ball, but then they made 21 straight points before Duquesne scored again.

Although Moe Becker and Paul Widowitz of Duquesne staged a mild rally by dropping in several long ones, Ohio's Frankie Baumholtz and Carl Ott matched their performance to keep Ohio well in the lead.

Baumholtz lived up to his all-state reputation with nine field goals and four free throws for a total of 22 points. Ott was close behind with 19.

Ohio university broke two tournament records with 15 free throws made to top Colorado's 13, made last year, and Ott made nine out of 13, to surpass the record of seven established by Bill Lloyd of St. John's in 1939.

C. C. N. Y. Wins

City College of New York used a different style but it was just as effective in beating the University of Virginia 64 to 35. The Beavers relied upon fast passing and cutting for the basket but could make long shots when necessary. Virginia kept pace for the first half, City leading 29-19, but couldn't match the local boys' speed later in the game, especially after Bill Harman and Bill McCann went out of the game on personal fouls.

The real point-getters go into action tonight.

Frank Keane's Rhode Island State team is supposed to be an outstanding example of the shoot-and-hope school of basketball and it has achieved considerable fame as "two-points-a-minute" outfit. Rhode Island's opponent is undefeated Seton Hall, which specializes in sound defense and clever ball handling but isn't likely to pass up scoring opportunities when the opposing defense is wide open.

The other game tonight sends Long Island university, one of the nation's leading basketball teams, against Westminster, a high-powered small college outfit.

Injured Players

Hamper Redlegs

(By Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla., March 19—Last year, it was complained by people who thought that the Cincinnati Reds deserved neither a National league pennant nor a world's championship, they were too lucky and never lost their stride because of injuries.

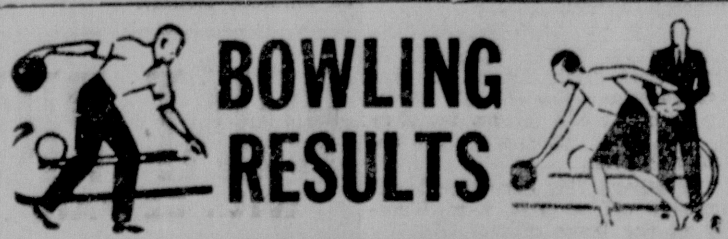

This year, the Reds hope, they are peccifying the complainants in advance, with six good men and one of the best among them, against Westminster, a high-powered small college outfit.

The latest victim, though, are stars Paul Derringer and Frank McCormick, both hit by batted balls yesterday. Paul was cut down in batting practice and Frank in the fourth inning on the exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers. Dr. Fred Shank, club physician, told both of them to take it easy for a few days.

Bill Werber is also hors de combat because of a slide into a base Saturday at Orlando and Ival Gooden's trick shoulder, first wrenched in the 1938 all-star game, is bothering him some more. Riddle, who is expected to get considerable work with the Reds, is 34 and a big brother of the team's rookie pitcher, Emer. He hit 280 last year with the Boston Bees two years ago in the deal for shortstop Eddie Miller.

BOWLING RESULTS

The National Sanitary tumbled the Masons three straight at the Masonic fifth place tie to fourth place in the National league standings. Carpenter of the Masons hit the highest single game with a 211 in his second.

This defeat dropped the Masons to fifth place, and the Eagles, who lost three tilts to the league-leading Gem Shoes, skidded into sixth.

The victory pulled the Gems a game and a half farther away from the second-place Salem News whose match with the Sohioans was postponed.

The Crescent Juniors stretched their first-place lead to three games over Scott's in the Owl circuit last night, sweeping three from the Trades Class while Scott's were winning two out of three from the J-CWILcats at the Grate alleys.

The Wildcats still hold a third-place tie with the Amateur Pros who two to the Amateur Trades.

In a special match at Columbian, the Ford V-8's, were defeated by the Columbian Barons, men's team, 2546-2508.

Ramsey hit 211 in her third game for the V-8's. Mather had a 219 for the Barons.

Toles Decisions Walker

COLUMBUS, March 19.—Jack "Buddy" Walker, Columbus heavyweight, lost a ten-round decision here last night to Roscoe Toles, Detroit boxer, in a return engagement. The two fighters fought to an unpopular draw a month ago. Toles weighed 198, Walker 190.

SIMON SAYS LOUIS CANNOT HURT HIM

DETROIT, Mich., March 19.—Ponderous Abe Simon, never knocked off his feet in 50 tough battles, presented a one-man ballyhoo in his own behalf today over his chances of accomplishing the seemingly impossible—defeating Joe Louis.

Simon says nobody believes him, but he is convinced, deep in his heart, that he has an excellent chance against the Brown Bomber, whom he meets in Detroit's Olympia arena Friday night in a bout scheduled for 20 rounds, or less.

The New York challenger bases his conviction on the fact that he never has been hurt by a blow, that he's never been floored, and that Louis, with all his devastating power, cannot hurt him.

ERADENTOWN, Fla.—The Cleveland Indians are hitting at last—even though it is only against minor league pitching.

Yesterday the Redskins, using a combination regular-Yanigan line, up, blasted four Rochester hurlers for 13 safe blows to win easily, 10 to 4. The Tribesmen planned to fatten their averages further today in a tussle here with Louisville of the American association.

The Indians whipped the International league champions with an eight-run attack in the eighth inning. Even pitcher Bill Zuber joined in the batting spree, clouting a mighty triple with the bases full to climax the rally.

Clarence Campbell, who is seeking to win the center field job away from Roy Weatherly, and Russ Peters, filling in at third base for Ken Keltner, paced the batsmen with three hits apiece.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—The Boston Bees' veterans are wondering what took place in a long conference between Manager Casey Stengel and Clarence Rowland, the Chicago Cubs' talent scout. The Cubs need a shortstop, and Boston's Eddie Miller would fill the bill.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Power has given the Philadelphia Athletics 10 victories in 11 exhibition games. Connie Mack's crew has scored 81 runs and rapped out 97 hits for a total of 192 bases. This includes 14 homers, six of them by Sam Chapman.

POOR FORM CAN'T STOP STAR GOLFERS

PINEHURST, N. C., March 19.—That the best golf pros in the business can score well without actually playing good golf had been proved once again today as the North-South open championship went into its second 18-hole round.

Leading the list were Harry Cooper and Lloyd Mangrum, the one from Chicago and the other from its suburbs. Neither was consistent in yesterday's opening round, yet both put 68's on the scoreboard.

A stroke back at 69 were the two pro champions, open titleholder Lawson Little and P. G. A. champ Byron Nelson, with Sammy Snead and red-haired Al Brosch of Farmingdale, N. Y., and not one of them produced for the entire 18 holes the kind of golf expected from the masters of this ancient, troublesome game.

Oil Burner

PHILADELPHIA—It was a raw cold night, and Woodrow Strong hit upon the idea of warming his drafty automobile with a small oil stove perched on the back seat. All was cozy—until the car skidded on trolley tracks, ran over the sidewalk and smashed into a lamp post. The stove tipped over, and the car's interior was burned out.

the big $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation before a final vote sends the bill to the senate.

Announcing this forlorn stand in the face of conceded overwhelming administration strength, Rep. Lambertson (R-Kans.) charged that President Roosevelt was "enthused, joyful almost to tears" at the possibility of becoming a war president of the United States.

This threat of determined resistance failed to arouse concern among the bill's supporters. As the hour for voting approached, leaders of both parties predicted that a tremendous majority would be rolled up for the appropriation to emphasize to the world that "we mean business."

Consider Amendments

Consideration of amendments was the first order of business for the day, and sponsors of the bill said their strategy would be to crush the first few major proposals with top-sided votes. The final roll call was expected late in the day.

Lambertson, however, declared that he would ask the house to send the measure back to the appropriations committee with instructions to cut it to $5,000,000,000 if for no other reason than to demonstrate "that we dare do it."

Lambertson told the chamber yesterday that the $7,000,000,000 fund request by President Roosevelt was the forerunner of others, and he gave it as his opinion that all-out aid meant eventually "sending our boys."
